Annual symposium
King's Park, Northampton, NN3 6LL
20 – 21 November 2017
Type and Wellbeing: living and dying

You are invited to attend the annual symposium of the Network for Psychological Type and Christian Faith. The aim of the Network's symposia is to provide opportunities for Christian MBTI practitioners and others interested in the relationship between Jung's model of psychological type and the Christian faith to network together and to exchange ideas. The theme for this year's conference is Type and Wellbeing: living and dying

This year our main speakers on the theme will be the Revd. David Knight, an Anglican priest and Hospice Chaplain, who is researching the connections between psychological type differences and what is perceived to be a good death; and the Revd. Canon Professor Leslie J. Francis, Professor of Religions and Education at the University of Warwick who is researching the connection between psychological type differences and personal and professional wellbeing. The sessions will consist of input and workshops.

Additionally, we will have two sessions contributed by participants on issues related to the theme.

The symposium will begin with registration between 12pm and 12.30pm on Monday, 20th November and will finish by 3pm on Tuesday, 21st November 2017

The cost of this year's Symposium is £130. The attached 'Payment' sheet provides details of how to pay. Please send completed forms to Margaret West, The St Mary's and St Giles' Centre, Llys Onnen, Abergwyngregyn, Llanfairfechan, Gwynedd, LL33 0LD or by email to canolfanysantesfair@gmail.com by 31 August 2017. Please also email to Margaret (canolfanysantesfair@gmail.com) a personal profile that can be circulated to the symposium participants (a template is attached for this purpose). Places at the Symposium will be allocated in order of receipt of booking forms. To avoid disappointment, please book as early as possible.
